_enable Otherwise you can run show databases; and find the key from the key column of the database you want to modify. Make sure you have the permissions to modify these parameters. Q: Why does this calculator not give the same output as the HP calculator? This is a simple calculator I wrote using 2 variables and 2 functions. I have input values of a and b but the output does not give the same values as the HP calculator. /* The code below is a calculator that uses the principle of algorithm stacking. It uses recursion to calculate the function. */
 #include //Function definitions int add(int a, int b);
